THE HELLESPONT.

THE TURKISH FORTIFICATIONS OF THE DARDANELLES.

The Currents and the Channel More of Protection Than the Forts-Not Difficult to Run by the Latter-Amusing Experiences of Naval Officers.

The strait of the Dardanelles is, as many ow, a narrow and tortuous watery know, a narrow and tortuous waterway of no great length leading in from the north Ægean to the inland sea of Marmora. But what many do not know is that the Turkish fortifications of the Dardanelles—at least, those of any importance—are situated in a single locality in the yightly of the property of th the vicinity of the squatty little Turkish town of Chanak-Kalesi (or the Pottery Castle), which lies on the Asiatic shore a few miles in from the mouth of the strait. One of these batteries—a low lying forti-fication constructed of mud, or rather clay walls, faced here and there with stone—is situated at Chanak-Kalesi itself. Another is planted about two miles further northeast on the same shore, while immediately across the strait from Chanak-Kalesi other across the strait from Chanak-Kalesi other battlements have been reared on somewhat higher ground. None of these defenses is especially formidable, as modern fortifications go, although it must be admitted that, inferior as they are in many respects, they do mount some heavy krupp guns of modern construction and undoubted power, while torpedoes, it is said, have lately been sunk in the channel. Every now and then the Turkish government buys a new gun and sets it up at the Dardanelles with a sublime confidence that thereby the integrity of the empire will be effectually secured.

But the Turks understand little about the handling of these great guns, although the Osmanli soldiers are brave when well officered, and it is probable that in the event of actual hostilities the gunners would soon be driven from these defenses, and many of the guns themselves be dis-mounted (by the skillful fire at long range of a fleet lying just inside the lower range of a fleet lying just inside the lower strait) before the Osmanli garrison could discharge more than a few wild shots with their intricate, but poorly managed, ballistic apparatus. What really adds more to the strength of these doorway defenses of Turkey, so to speak, than any qualities of the garrison in these forts is the swiftness of the currents and the tortuous character of the ship channel of the Dardanelles. Yet it is not improbable that once crippled by a fire at long range a nervy and resolute captain of a modern battleship could run the gantlet of the upper batteries before the bewildered gunners could adjust their artillery to the could adjust their artillery to warship's varying range or succeed in accomplishing more than a smashing of some of the vessel's upper works. Out of a fleet of half a dozen vessels endeavoring to force the passage of the Dardanellea, two would probably be disabled or would helplessly ground in maneuvering, while the balance would steam between the party. balance would steam triumphantly past Gallipoli, at the upper end of the Dardanelles, and thereafter have absolute ly free course directly to the Golden Horn and that part of the pretty Bosporus overlooked by the windows and modes facades of the Yildiz palace. It is said that in the old days of three deckers an American frigate, whose right of cutrance had been challenged by the Turks, hove to opposite Chanak (as the orientals familiarly and almost affectionately term the palace), fired a salute and then under the cover of the smoke this raised—for that was before the days of "smokeless powder"—made boldly up the strait for the sea of Marmora before the Turks could re cover from the astonishment or interposed by forcible remonstrance.

Another American naval officer tells an amusing story of an experience that beful him when his ship was anchored off Chanak awaiting the reception of "pratique." After some delay a boat was observed putting off from shore in the direct tion of the United States corvet. As the boat came alongside a dirty Turkish offi-cer stood up in the stern sheets, and, pointing with his thumb in the general direction of Constantinople, exclaimed "Stamboula git!" The officer of the decl did not understand the whole force of the expression (go to Constantinople), with the quick wit of a Yankee he stinctively divined the significance of the right" (an imperative from the Turkish verb gitmek), which seemed to possess a certain resemblance to Yankee slang, and immediately gave orders to get the anchor aboard and bear away up the strait toward Stamboul as fast as the slow American vessels stop their engines abreast of a Turkish guardship no bigger than a North river tug, anchored about two miles above Chanak-Kalesi, and there the permission in documentary form which they had reanchored about two miles above ceived authorizing the navigation of the Turkish waters by them they deliver up before steaming past Chanak out among the Greek islands of the Ægean. If a venturesome or ignorant merchant steam er on entering the strait presumes to pass on beyond a certain point, a shot is fired across her bow, and the cost of the powder thus burned is collected scrupulously from the owners or agents of the vessel on from the owners or agents of the vessel on her arrival at Stamboul, as oriental logic fails to comprehend why poor Turkey should pay for any foreign disregard of her rules.—Army and Navy Journal.

A journal indulges in pleasantry because an unbrella maker in Brussels puts on his sign the words, "Furnisher to the Kongo State." Perhaps if the journal knew more about the subject it would not think it so

No article sent out to the Kongo State, where there are 8,000,000 persons and any number of small potentates, is so popular or sells so readily for a large sum as the huge gay umbrella, of which Brussels now produces several tons every year.

These umbrellas are in a certain sense the insignia of royalty—that is, they are much prized by the kinglets who sit beneath their grateful shade. What the canopy used to be to the traveling monarch in the time of the crusades the umbrella is to the innumerable feudal chieftains of the Kongo today. The accredited umbrella makers in Brussels are acquiring fortunes. -London Globe.

Police Philosophy.

Down in Pearl street, New York, I saw two lads about 12 years old fighting on the walk and a policeman looking on.

"No arrests in such a case?" I queried.

"No," he replied. "To arrest them now would stop the fight, and they'd have to try it on again to see who was the best. Let one lick the other, and the licked one will hereafter run instead of fight."

His philosophy was good. In about a minute one of the pair ceased to fight and started off on a run, and the other walked up stairs to his work.—Detroit Free Press.

VARIOUS NOTES.

Narrow Belts-Neck Euches of Flowers, Ribbon, Chiffon and Taffeta.

Ribbon bows and loops, thickly set and mingled with flowers, form fashionable ruches. Others consist of platted taffeta and chiffon, with loops of satin, and have an immense bow at the back.

Many of the new shirt waists have de-tachable collars. This is a decided im-provement on the old style, where the col-lar forms a part of the waist, for the collar

SPRING MODES.

Beautiful Thin Materials For Warm Weather-Small Sleeves Again.

Spring and summer will see a multipli-cation of beautiful silk and wool fabrics, among which are lace striped goods in combinations of color.

Cotton and silk materials adorned with satin stripes are among the novelties, as are pale yellow flowered organdies and organdles with a satin ground and bouquete in relief. Other goods have a chine ground with small flowers and dots in relief There are plain batistes and those sprin kled with flowers in the Louis Quinze and Louis Seize style. The large sleeve has received its death warrant, but will doubtless take a long time in dying. The newer sleeves are mod-erately close nearly to the top, where they are crowned by a bouffant arrangement of some sort to break the too abrupt transition from large to small arm coverings.

An Illustration is given of a velours and cloth gown. The skirt, of red and gray striped velours, is ornamented with length wise bands of black cloth. The Louis Quinze coat of black cloth has a rather long basque. It opens over a plastron of red velvet framed in a drapery of eeru lace, and buttons over at the walst with four buttons. The open, flaring collar is of buttons. The open, flaring collar is of black cloth lined with velours, and a cra-vat of ecru lace falls over the plastron. The sleeves are of velours and have a tight wrist, the balloon portion being laid in three horizontal plaits. Epaulets of black cloth fall over the sleeves. A fine jet passementeric edges the basque. The toque is of roses and is decorated with an algret of black velvet.

Winding Machines,"

A very ingenious improvement is announced in winding machines for yarn or thread. In this new construction the yarn, on leaving the spinning bobbin, is passed over a barreled guide, thence to the roll, or spindle, where the roll is being made, and the motion of the bobbin from which the yarn is being unwound to form the roll is controlled by the action of a combined spring and weight, drag or brake. This consists of a curved spring pressed against the yarn on the bobbin being unwound by means of an angled lever and weight, the latter of which can lever and weight, the latter of which can be adjusted to give the amount of drag re-quired. The spring pressing against the yarn on the bobbin yields to the inequali-ties of the surface of the yarn without causing the weight to vibrate materially. The weighted arm is set at such an angle that when the bobbin being unwound is full of yarn the spring is made to exert its greatest pressure on the yarn, and as the bobbin decreases in diameter the angle varies so that the pressure also decreases and thus a uniform and steady drag is ob tained thoughout the unwinding of the varn from the bobbin.—New York Sun.

Horseless Carriages In 1645.

In one of the letters of Grui Patin, writ-ten in 1645, the learned bibliophilist says: "It is true that there is here an English-man, the son of a Frenchman, who pro-poses to make carriages that will roll from Paris to Fontainebleu without horse day. The new machine is preparing in the Temple. If it should succeed, there will be a great saving of hay and oats, which are at present extremely costly."

The longest tunnels, in proportion to the size of the workers, are those constructed by the South American ants. One of these has been traced two miles, and during its course it passed under a stream nearly 50 yards in width.

THE CHAS. LYLE DRUG Co. desire us to publish the following extract from a letter of Chas. M. Gutfeld, of Reedly, Fresno county, Cal., as they handle the remedy referred to and want their customers to know what a splendid medicine it is:

"It is with pleasure I tell you that by "It is with pleasure I tell you that by one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very severe cold. My head was completely stopped cold. My head was completely stopped. up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. By using this remedy freely as soon as the cold has been contracted it will cure the cold at once and prevent it from extending to the lungs.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominent merchant of Live Oak, Sutter county, Cal., was taken with a very heavy cold. The pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have expun he invasis. cured him. Mr. McFarland says when-ever his children have croup he invaria-bly gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He considers it the best cough remedy in the market. For sale by The Chas-Lyle Drug Company.
